FIGHTING MARINE WRITES FROM FRANCE

Lieut. Victor Bleasdale of U. S. Marines Describes Battles of Marines During June and July

A letter recently received by Joseph R. Bleasdale from his son, Lieut. Victor Bleasdale of the American Marines, describes very clearly the battles fought by the Marines during the months of June and July.

In his letter Lieut. Bleasdale tells of his brother Hector, also of Janesville, who is now serving in the Marines. Both of the young men went through the battles of June and July without a scratch. His letter follows:

"First American Expeditionary Force, 15th Co., 8th Machine Gun Battalion, Marines, Amex's, France, Aug. 24, 1918.—Dear Father: Just received your letter of July 11, and am glad to hear all to you. Everything is going fine in France—victory after victory is the only news nowadays. Our gains have been great but the fighting is savage and therefore times rather costly, but that is the nature of the war. I came through the June and July battles without a scratch, which is something out of the ordinary for a marine. My regiment was engaged continuously in the battle. When he was going forward to the battle line he wrote to me and said that all was O. K. he would write again soon. Ten weeks went by without a note, so in view of the fighting we went through I had given him up for lost. Then along came a letter from him stating he had come out of the battles without a scratch. Some luck, when two brothers can go through a series of battles without a scratch.

"With best wishes to all, I am very long absent, your son, VICTOR."

The following officers were elected: A. M. Church, chairman; E. L. Bingham, Secretary; Jesse Earle, Treasurer; E. M. Gilman and J. C. Wilson, members of the executive committee.

Paul Grubb, Edgerton; W. F. Schuman, Hanover; E. T. Coon, Milton; and Sam Cutts of Beloit County, constitute the congressional district committee.

George W. Blanchard, Edgerton; and E. F. Baldridge of Footville, constitute the state senatorial district committee.

The candidates nominated on the republican county ticket will meet with the executive committee in the near future.

GIVEN NINETY DAYS FOR BEING VAGRANT

George Owens was given ninety days in the county jail when appearing on last Saturday, E. P. Stuart, judge, to answer a charge of vagrancy. Owens readily admitted his guilt and was given the usual sentence for men who refuse to work. Charles Ormsby of Beloit was assessed twenty-three dollars and costs in the municipal court when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of drunkenness. Judge Maxfield allowed a slight reduction on his fine when he convinced Judge Maxfield that he was supporting the government the best he could.

ENEMY ALIEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY MONDAY

He stated this morning that he was not pro-German and had never made any pro-German remarks and that the only thing he wanted him in Wauegan for was traveling without a permit. He is being held at the county jail pending the arrival of officers from Wauegan.

On sale at St. Joseph's Convent, identification cards and pocket folders for soldiers and sailors. Also numerous religious articles.

PLEADS GUILTY TO STEALING JEWELRY

Hugh McIntyre Admits Theft of Two Rings From Planters Hotel—Will Be Sentenced Tomorrow Morning.

Hugh McIntyre, aged eighteen years, was arraigned before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court to answer a charge of stealing two rings from the Planters hotel. McIntyre entered a plea of guilty to a misdemeanor, charged with the theft of the rings, and Judge Maxfield deferred sentence until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

McIntyre was arrested Sunday evening by Captain Thomas Morrissey and the two rings—one belonging to Miss Frances Keiler and the other to Dan Higgins—were recovered by Chief of Police Peter Champion.

Ray Odegaard, arrested yesterday morning on the complaint by Arthur Metzinger, alleging that Odegaard embezzled money from Metzinger, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and demanded a hearing. His hearing was set for October 8th, and he was held under $500 bonds.

STANDARD BEARERS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

Mrs. Frank Lawson and Miss Lucy Sheffield entertained the Senior Division Standard Bearers last evening at the home of the former at South High street. The annual election of officers for the ensuing year was held, reports given for the past year's work and plans made for the work of the year. There were a large attendance and keen interest shown in the plans for the future. The past year the society has been divided into four groups and the results of the efforts have been so excellent it was decided to continue in groups for another year. Some forty new members have been received and reports show the state has enjoyed one of the best years in its history.

Mrs. Paul Trumble was elected delegate to the district meeting to be held in Milton in the near future. It was also announced that Mrs. Trumble, and the Misses Ruth Taylor, Mary Wendt and Luella Lake were the elected delegates from the different branches of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society to be held in Milwaukee, Oct. 8-10, at which time delegates will be there from all over the state, from Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

Mrs. Charles Collett led in devotions and the election of officers took place at the regular program. The nominating committee had prepared three tickets—red, white and blue—with yell for each and speakers. Mrs. Paul Trumble gave a very interesting talk in favor of the blue side; Miss Helen Peterson spoke convincingly for the white ticket, but unfortunately the speaker for the red side was unable to be present. When the final vote was counted the blue ticket had won by a large majority. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Officers elected were as follows: President, Miss Ella Townsend; vice-president, Miss Luella Lake; secretary, Miss Gray; treasurer, Mrs. Chas. Beck; corresponding secretary, Miss Ella Townsend; chairman of committees, Program, Miss Lucy Whitmore; social, Miss Helen Peterson; mite boxes, Mrs. Floy Hoague.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1.—Armour was the live wire in the hog market, despite the fact that he had a train of Tennessee stuff direct from Nashville.

It was a steady trade with a strong finish, the big house injecting whatever pep appeared.

The $20 quotation was preserved, prices being steady to 10c lower. Packers made an effort to take off 26c, but the supply was insufficient.

In consequence of the 575-lb minimum on army carcasses, the cattle weighing over 1,200 lbs. went to a premium, most of them being 28c higher.

No prime bullocks arrived, $19.50 taking the best.

Feeding cattle were in demand for the request for reduction of the minimum and it will probably stand at 575 lbs.

Wild Sheep Market

In the sheep house pandemonium reigned. The best western lambs sold at $17, against $17.75 late last week.

Feeder trade was demoralized. Receipts were 12,000 cattle, of which 11,000 were westerns; 30,000 hogs and 70,000 sheep. Packers had 1,000 cattle, 7,700 hogs and 7,000 sheep direct to their plants.

Feeding cattle were in a point, traders having carried over 5,000 from last week.

Western markets had 50,000 less cattle than a week ago. The best last week, but of supply and the trade believes that low point for the season was uncovered at that stage, but there will be no scarcity of cattle for the next sixty days. Quality was the worst of the season.

Feeders in from the country reported that no market for new corn had developed, there being a disposition to secure $1.25 per bu. New corn is superior in quality to that of the old crop, hence in demand.

Pig Crop 30 Days Late

Advices to commission houses indicated that the pig crop is thirty days late, but is now on new corn and gaining weight.

Western cattle sold mainly at $11@14.50 with a few at $15.00@19.50. Choice to choice steers 14.50@18.75. Good to choice steers 14.50@16.80. Med. to good steers 14.50@16.80. Fair to medium steers 12.00@14.50. Common to fair steers 8.00@12.00. Stockers and feeders 8.00@12.00. Good to choice cows 8.75@12.00. Fair to good cows 7.50@8.75. Canners and cutters 5.75@8.25. Fat andologna hogs 8.00@12.25. Good to choice range cattle 14.50@17. Fair to good range cattle 11@14.50.

Hog Prices Steady

A run of 30,000 hogs carries 7,700 direct to packers. Prices were steady to 10c lower. Some packing stuff sold as low as $18.25, while $20 was paid for choice lights and mediums.

Good to choice mediums 19.75@20.00. Choice bacon weights 19.65@19.90. Good to choice heavy 19.40@19.80. Choice to prime mixed 19.25@19.65. Good to choice mixed 19.00@19.25. Medium heavy packing 18.75@19.00. Good heavy packing 18.50@18.75. Medium heavy packing 18.25@18.40.

A $17.00 top was made on the Wood Live Stock Company's lambs, against $17.75 last week. Natives were a poor lot, selling from $15.50 down. Prices were about 50c lower where the market could be safely quoted.

Good to choice lambs 14.50@17.00. Fair to good lambs 13.50@16.50. Common to fair lambs 12.00@15.50. Feeding lambs 15.00@15.50. Good to choice ewes 10.75@11.50. Good to choice wethers 11.75@12.40. Feeding ewes 11.00@11.90. Breeding ewes 12.00@15.00.

La. Crosse.—Brigadier General Randolph A. Richards of Santa, N. C., has been assigned by the war department to command the 192nd infantry brigade, just being formed.

What The "Janesville Girl About Town" Said:—

Here's your Hat

And Where I Found It

With the glowing colors of fall comes the big question of the new fall hat to appropriately blend in with the scheme of things.

Regardless of war work or business or any one of the hundred and one things Milady has to think about nowadays, she still must be well-dressed, now more than ever.

And so to see what the war is doing to hats this year, I started vagabonding along the Avenue a bit to see what I would see.

This is what I found:

That the milliners of a certainty are doing their duty in trying to make us forget the war, our worries and the high cost of living generally, for everywhere I found hats more lovely than they have ever been—large and small, feathers, feathers and then more feathers, flowers, fur, velvet, felt, anything and everything that has ever been thought of, of which can be fashioned a hat.

"Did you ever see a cheerful hat? There is a close fitting crimson one at Madden & Rae's that makes you feel good all over. Miss Lorenz, she is the manager you know, told me never before were hats so wonderful."

Madden and Rae

"One of the smartest dress hats I found at Mrs. Walker's—in Simpson's, you know. It was made of brown velvet with a collar effect of beaver cloth embroidered in chenille. A wing turned trimly from the crown and left side."

Mrs. Walker

SIMPSON'S

"I found I could get a hat at a reasonable price without sacrificing style here."

"Personally I like the two-tone hat—and I notice how becoming they are to my friends. Mrs. O'Brien—next the Apollo theater—has made a specialty of this style. Some are faced with sky blue, others with blush pink."

"I strolled into the Hinterschied hat department tired one afternoon and watched the Janesville women trying on hats. It was a pleasure to see how the new hats added to their general appearance. Hats, hats—yes—but only one absolutely correct for each woman in Janesville."

CONSEQUENTIAL WORK.

There is much discussion at present over what is consequential work in this work-a-day life of ours. Many various classifications have been made and suggested and some divisions decided upon, but nothing definite settled. Of course the lines have tightened in many industries, but no fast or set rule has been fixed by the powers that be and there is still much uncertainty as to which will be called for active war service and who will be saved for other work. Whether many of the present workmen will continue in their present occupations or be ordered into some other thought more consequential. These are war days and war measures are being enacted. War measures mean hardships for many and extra work for thousands. The need for the constantly increasing demand for labor while the man-power of the nation is being continually sapped by the various drafts which call men into actual war service. Until some middle of the way course is reached, there will be much confusion, but later this will be straightened out and a proper solution reached.

OVER THE TOP.

Rock county must go over the top in the first day of the coming drive. Already indications are that the city of Janesville will be subscribed up to the limit long before the time set for the closing. The plans had been carefully prepared; success would mean a demonstration of the will of the citizens to carry out the thought of the late Allen P. Leveque, who has devoted so much time and thought to the work. It would be a personal tribute to him and his ideals. Let us make it so.

The headquarters are ready to receive contributions and the bulk of the work should be done through this medium. It should not be necessary for the business men of the city to make a personal appeal to individuals to help win this war. It should be voluntary contribution. Thus far the former appeals have been most successful and this fourth demand upon us to loan money to Uncle Sam to help win the war, with the glorious news of the waging of the campaign in the east and the west, the possible rehabilitation of Russia and the tightening of the net around the Central powers, should open the purse strings as never before.

There are three ways to save money. One, by putting it in the "family tea pot," where moths, rust and thieves enter and corrupt. The second, by loading to a bank, at a modern rate of interest, and just but not least, that of buying a Liberty bond, receiving four and a half percent interest and knowing that you are doing your share toward winning this war, even if you, yourself, can not be present to take actual part in the conflict. The last is the best, the safest and the surest method of doing your share.

BULGARIA.

Announcement that the allies have signed an armistice with Bulgaria, one of the nations allied with the Central powers, preparatory to a genuine peace proposition, indicates that one by one the allies of the Hun are ready to quit the battle and seek shelter while they may. A section of the Tartar tribes that overran Europe at the time of the invasion of that people centuries ago, the Bulgarians had intermingled with the Slavonians until they had acquired their language, their religion and customs. They, however, retained the cunning of their Tartar ancestors and their Emperor Ferdinand, taking advantage of the disrupted conditions of the Balkans in 1910, declared his kingdom an empire and himself the emperor. Ruling the side of Germany and Austria-Hungary, aided by Germany and their Hun monarchy allies, they overran Serbia, aided in the subjugation of Rumania, which had sided with the allies, and even invaded Grecian lands. Now, when the tide of battle turns against them they cry for mercy, seek to retain their empire and make the best peace possible. Of course we do not know all the inner workings of this armistice, but there must have been some grave reason, and perhaps it can be explained that if the allies can gain control of the great railway system that runs through Bulgaria they can prevent aid being sent to Turkey and by this means shorten the life of that nation's activity in the war. Both Bulgaria and Turkey have suffered tremendous losses in the past few weeks and indications are that they will suffer more later on. With Bulgaria out of the war, aid can be extended to Rumania, now under Teuton domination, access into European Russia obtained and the circle about the Central powers tightened. The next few days will tell the whole story but it would not be surprising to see Austro-Hungary the next of the Central powers to ask for mercy.

The fact that our fathers used to work ten to twelve hours a day and yet have time enough to care for a little flock of poultry, does not prove that we can do it on our eight or nine hour day.

The folks who complain because the American army doesn't go ahead faster, are not usually the same ones who buy a good, large Liberty bond to provide that army with an equipment that will enable it to advance.

Prominent among the people who are complaining about all the robberies of war gardens that are going on, are those whose boys for years have manipulated all the fruit trees of the neighborhood.

Among the people who object to the education of drafted young men at government expense, are those who will later kick because the army does not get results because of its lack of military and technical science.

Merchants who are putting on girls to run their delivery wagons, report that the fact that the young person has a college education does not prove that she can harness up the horse.

The charge for moving telephones having been increased, it is now up to the householders to make a mistake, and put it in the right location in the first place.

If you want to illustrate a missionary lecture on the Hotentots, all you have to do is to bring in a society girl with her hair waved down below her ears.

The man who can get out with a gun these days and return with a bag of game, has talents that would be appreciated by all our boys now in the trenches.

Organizations to pursue automobile thieves are being formed, and like the old chief detective societies, their first duty will be to hold the annual dinner.

Among the people who wonder why groceries cost so much are those who forget to order until reminded by the delivery wagon passing their house. This is a time when most women are working. The more attention they give to being stylish, the less they are in style.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

London Notes.

We always wait impatiently for the dear old "Tatler," which brings us the real news from London. The cable is temperamental and grows optimistic and pessimistic in turn; but the old "Tatler" always splits the truth or as much of it as will leak out. Scandal? My word! Libel? The old "Tatler" always commends certain brands of cigarettes right in big type in the ads. A prominent society woman testifies as follows: "The cigarettes are delicious. I never smoked American tobacco before, but I love it."

And just to think over here, some of the theatre managers will not allow ladies to smoke in the lounging rooms.

The best story of the week was told by a well-known minister. It runs as follows: "In one family there had been four marriages in less than eighteen months. You are getting rid of your family quickly," I said to the father. "Yes," agreed the father, "I have only two kids and one left now. Haw-haw."

The war between Mr. G. Bernard Shaw and Mr. G. K. Chesterton, you will be pleased to learn, is still in progress. Shaw has crowded Chesterton back to the Chesterton line, but no peace talk is heard. The heavy cannonading is terrific and continuous and both gentlemen get their names in the papers with faithful regularity. Both have combined the dictionary and the classics for reserves to hurl at each other. The little squabble over in France is a mere sideshow. Sweet are the uses of advertising.

METAMORPHOSIS.

We lost our cook, a good one, too. Her name was Fizzie Ann McCue. She left us quickly, high and dry. And never stopped to say "Good-by." We saw the lady yesterday. Her fur was rich. She went her way as laughily as a movie queen. In her new tulle limousine. She saw me not, nor paused to nod, and left a woman in a cloud. For we have changed our class positions. She's doing something in munitions.

"Aren't you going for a little sail soon?" asked the Junker. "What? With this war on?" replied the commander of the German high-seas fleet. "I should say not."

THE JESTER.

Some wonder why he smiled when all were sad. Some questioned how he had the heart to sing When every day the wires new grief might bring. And frowned because he snatched rich moments glad. From hours made black by bitter sorrowing.

"Has he no sense of pity," low, they asked. "That he still laughs when eyes of woman weep? And death's grim news is flashed beneath the deep? Today the lives of men are sorely tasked, And yet he jests as a bitter posta they keep."

Yet there were those who heard him jest and sing. And wished that he might pass their way again. They had been soothed and comforted of pain. Some of their weight of grief had taken wing. And they were humming low a glad refrain.

They never guessed the anguish in his heart. Some thought his eyes had never shed a tear. Yet he had mourned and suffered pain severe. And, understanding, played the jester's part. To lighten sorrow with a flash of cheer.

Census Completed.

Milwaukee.—The census of black walnut timber in Milwaukee county, requested by the government, just closed and made by the boy scouts, spring and summer, is a total of 1200 trees in the county. These returns were sent to the government and instructions as to their disposition have been received by the Milwaukee county. Numerous inquiries have come to W. Davidson's office since the boys made the census many persons wishing to donate their trees to the government and desiring instructions as to proper procedure. The results of the canvass were extremely gratifying as it had been reported that black walnut did not grow wild in Milwaukee county, and consequently it was expected that only a few hundred trees would be located. The boys made the canvass while on their spring and summer hikes and trips in the country.

Avoid Influenza

Keep a package of Smith's Cold Tablets in the house. They're a sound prescription and are proof positive against the inroads of influenza. Soon as you feel listless and languid, or have cold in the head or eyes, swallow these tablets to proper procedure. THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY IS AT WAR WITH THE SOVEREIGN PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES

The issue at stake is the struggle of individual rulers to survive by virtue of brute force at their command against popular government. It is the will of the Ruler, first expressed by the strong man of the tribe, and then by the club, which form of government attained its full development in 1914 in Germany, as against the rights of the people, first set down in England's MAGNA CHARTA, and most fully developed in our own government. The people, for the people and by the people—the same old struggle of might to maintain itself against right. THAT IS THE ISSUE. The clash between Autocracy and Democracy had to be fought to a finish! The line up, as it now stands is clear. Germany, Austria and Turkey ruled by a Kaiser, an Emperor, and a Sultan, against America, England, France and the nurseries of popular government. To win the war the SOVEREIGN PEOPLE of the United States must borrow money. As individuals we must loan it. As evidence of the amounts loaned by the People's Government at Washington will issue LIBERTY BONDS—the I. O. U. of the American People, never in default. As you have faith in your own government, of which you are a part—in loaning it money at this time. GO YOUR LIMIT.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl with a boy here and as it is a small town every one knows me and I have two or three other friends who are in the same line and I hear from them often and they always have some kind of remarks to make to me about him. He was in the last draft and when examined on account of his heart and cannot go. He is very attractive and good-looking and I think quite a bit of him and hate to hear remarks about him. What would you think of such remarks.

BLACK HAIR.
Since the boy was honorably discharged it is not his fault that he has to remain at home and cannot get into the thick of the fight with the other boys. I indicate him as a soldier boy. I may be able to change their attitude toward him. If he is working hard back here and buying bonds and stamps the boys are willing to let the other boys do everything and is not going all he can back of the line. The soldier boys are right in criticizing him and he does not deserve to be defended.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a soldier friend who thinks a good deal of me. We have been going together just a little now and then. But when he comes to see me he says he thinks that I am the only girl he would ever love. I am not so much in love with him. Of course in a way I am in love. I don't think I could find any one nicer than him. But he says every time he comes. I have another friend who is just like the first, but I can't have both.

A FRIEND.
The person who flatters and talks freely about his love is usually not very deeply in love and tumbles out of love as easily as he tumbled in. Do not take what he says seriously and try to keep him from talking of such things. Since you do not love the boy, insist that your relationship be simply that of friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a gentleman admirer who pays me his full attention. Last year he was very attentive to another young lady. Now she has gone away and I have heard that he cares just as much for me. He has had to register recently and expects to go to the colors soon. I do not care enough for him to marry him now. Do you think, if I should promise him, that absence would make the heart grow fonder? Whenever I say anything about his age he blushes. I think he is about thirty-five. I am twenty-one. Do you think there is too much difference in our ages?

GERTRUDE S.
There is little chance that absence would make the heart grow fonder. Do not become engaged to the man. When he returns from war you can tell better how much you care for him. I think he is too old for you unless you are deeply in love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a stenographer twenty-one years old. I am not an attractive girl, but always seem to have plenty of men friends.
I became acquainted with a soldier a short time ago. Since then we have corresponded. He has asked to come to see me or for me to come to see him. I am not especially interested in the matrimonial question, but by his letters I am convinced that he is. Shall I tell him in a letter how I feel or shall I let him come to see me? M. A. QUERITE.

Make it clear right away that you and the soldier must be friends only. It is dangerous to encourage or even permit a person to think along such lines. The boy may learn to love you, if while he is away and when he meets you he will be deeply hurt to find his love dream in shattered.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What is the best way for a friend to go home when he comes to see his girl and hasn't seen her in three or four weeks.
A boy should not stay after 10:30 p. m. no matter how long it has been since he has called upon the girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think spats are going to be worn very much this winter?
Yes.

SIDE TALKS

Mother and Aunt.
A difficulty between a mother and aunt was brought to my attention the other day.
The aunt lives in the home of her married sister (not as a pensioner, but simply for the greater financial convenience of both parties). The sister has four small children. The aunt wants to reprove the children when they do things that she thinks are not right or that annoy her. The mother says that she has no business to interfere with her children.

There are some situations in life in which one gives sympathies in life to one party, and one's reprobation to the other.
There are other situations in which one gives sympathies instinctively to both parties. And to me this is one of them.

Hard to Live in the House With Other People's Children.
I think there is nothing harder than to live in the house with children, and to have the inevitable itch to guide and direct and restrain, which children seem to arouse in an older person, and not to be able to relieve that itch by word or deed. Unless it is to be a mother and to have someone constantly showing by word or deed that he or she thinks that you are bringing up your children better than you are doing it.

The Aunt's Complaint.
In this case this is the aunt's complaint. "She simply will not make the children mind. She tells them she is going to punish them if they do something, and then she doesn't keep her word. She says 'No, you can't have this, and then they tease and she gives it to them. And you know how children ride you when she waits on them so much she makes it a lot harder for herself. But if I make a protest she is furious. She doesn't even like it if I reprove the children when they rub their greasy hands over my dress or do things like that."

And this is the mother's point. "She's always finding fault with the way I bring up the children. And she's always nagging at them if they touch her, and finding fault with their table manners or telling about other children that button their own shoes or something like that. It makes me nervous enough to say."

Both Are Wrong And Both Are Right.
The party who brought this matter to my attention asked for my advice. One can't say much, but here are a few suggestions.

First, the mother should permit the aunt to reprove the children when they encroach upon her in any way. Children are naturally lawless and one must sometimes defend oneself from them.

Second, the aunt should never question the mother's authority or criticize the mother in the presence of the children. (If at all.)

And lastly, both should realize that the other's situation contains elements of difficulty and should try to be tolerant.

PERFUME GOING UP ON ACCOUNT OF WAR

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS]
Rome, Oct. 1.—As a result of the war Italy's perfume next year is to cost more than ever before.
Be that as it may, Bulgaria is the world's center for the cultivation of roses for perfume. The essence of roses from Bulgaria constitutes the basis of the great bulk of all genuine flower perfumes the world over. The cultivation of these roses is one of the principal industries of the Bulgarian peasant when he is not engaged in manufacturing his Serbian neighbors or performing other non-essential atrocities.

This year, owing to the fact that the great bulk of the Bulgarian peasant population is mobilized in the cause of Germany, the roses have not been given the cultivation and attention they need.

The entire production of essence of roses in Bulgaria this year has been only about 4,800 pounds. In ordinary times it averages 11,000 pounds. On account of the poor quality of roses this year it required about 60 pounds of roses to produce 5 grams of essence. If the roses had been properly attended to this quantity could have been secured from only 25 pounds of roses.

The women of the allied countries are thus to have brought home to them a realization of what it means to make war against Germany and her allies.

THE STRUGGLE

THE TASTE OF CONQUEST.
When Blake and Edith Ferrol arrived at the club house his wife saw at once he was displeased at something. She took occasion in the cloak-room to whisper:
"You look grouchy, Al. What's the matter?"

Blake did not answer until she had repeated her question.
"Nothing," he said, "about nothing." Lillian stared.
"Do you mean you're going to lecture me about something when we get home?" she asked.
Blake did not reply even in the least of her increasing displeasure.
"Are you angry at me?" she asked.
"Something Edith has told you of me," she persisted. But as her husband disregarded her question, she read his silence correctly. With a faint of her head she said:
"If you don't answer me now, I shall not let you when we get home. We'll consider the subject closed—whatever it is. You were all right when we started. Edith Ferrol's told you something on the way here. If you believe her and sympathize with her more than your own wife—"

"Cut that, Lil," blurted Blake with a scowl. "I do sympathize with Edith Ferrol in lots of ways. She's got her own troubles."
"And I'm one of them, I suppose?" That's what Edith was trying to give him a few pointers on being something and somebody? Well—Lillian shrugged her handsome, plump shoulders, "I'm through. Let her go on being a little gray mouse, whimpering and whining over her more agreeable to do than stand here quarrelling with you, Al. You can look after Mousie!" Lil was in "one of those moods."

Had Alice Blake been of a more subtle cast of mind, or one of sensitiveness to feminine charms in general, he probably would have found himself sentimentally interested in Edith Ferrol. For Lil's stand was exactly calculated to bring such a thing about. But Blake was a big, good-natured man, and while he "got mad" at Lil's attitude he never carried his mind to be disloyal. He shrugged his heavy shoulders and kept away from Lillian the greater part of the evening. This was largely from choice. Lillian gave what through necessity she could hear him small chance to speak to her. Both to punish him and because she loved the sense of conquest, she made herself the center of the male attendance that evening.

The Arcadians were prepared to give the new residents a hearty welcome even before it was known by all what the newcomers would be like. But when Lillian Blake came in, gowning in a minute creation of motifs of some glittery black stuff, every Arcadian eye was trained approvingly upon her. To her natural large, blond beauty was added the glow of coquetry and designed conquest, which made every man like her at once, and every woman fear her.

The blood rose to Edith Ferrol's cheeks as she noted Lil's "simple" gown, and saw the instant onsway of masculinity in her direction. "If Lil aimed to show Edith what she was missing by refusing to be guided into successful matrimony, she succeeded admirably. Edith, in her orange, net, and white, blue thing with the whatchacallit at the back," felt the weight of oppression that only a pretty, young and intelligent woman can feel when she is badly dressed and all her charms obscured by a mass of sordid circumstances.

She felt resentful toward Lillian Blake, toward her own husband, toward the luck that had made fruitless her days of hard labor over the goodies she had expected to sell to Mrs. Carter, and toward herself for not being characterful enough to overcome the penury that enchained her. She glanced up just in time to see Lil grasp John Ferrol by the arm, and with pretended confusion discard an expectant dancing partner and glide out upon the floor with Ferrol.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

HOW CHITTENDEN ECONOMIZED
Professor Chittenden is one of the great authorities on the subject of nutrition. He wrote a book entitled "Physiological Economy in Nutrition." He has suffered from obstinate so-called "rheumatism" of the knee and he thought that regulation of his diet might do some good. He adopted this plan and the amounts of all the food elements were considerably reduced, but particularly the proportion of protein (heat, egg white, fish, fowl, cheese).

The knee got well and the professor also got rid of "sick headaches" and "bilious attacks." He wrote: "There was a greater appreciation of such food as was eaten; a keener appetite and more acute taste seemed to be developed, with a more thorough liking for simple foods."

Read that quotation over at least three times, and read it slowly and thoughtfully, you food wasters. It is a great sermon in thirty words, and answers more to the mind than many Chittenden lost about 16 pounds weight and thereafter the body weight remained stationary. He spent two months of the nine months diet which he followed the restricted diet on an outing at an island fishing resort, part of the time rowing his boat six to ten miles in the forenoon sometimes against headwinds (without breakfast) and with "much greater freedom from fatigue and muscular soreness than in ten years past on a fuller dietary."

The experience of Chittenden was similar to that of Sylvester Graham, the apostle of vegetarianism. In 1829 this man advocated moderation in the use of a diet consisting of vegetables, Graham bread (made of unbleached flour), fruits, nuts, salt, and pure water; the diet excluded meats, sauces, salads, tea, coffee, alcohol, pepper and mustard. Here is a note from a follower of the Graham system:

"The first three months of my experiment on the Graham diet I lost 25 pounds of flesh. The neighbors assumed me I should die of starvation—in fact my demise from starvation was reported in the next town. But my appetite increased and my health was increasing, and in a short time my headaches, colds, costiveness, and rheumatism left me altogether. I overcame a tendency toward a hypochondriacal and gloomy state of mind. These ailments have not since returned, although I have been much exposed to wet and cold."

All this is as far from the foolish notion of "eating as much as you like" and taking a pill afterward as is the equator from the poles.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Bladder or Kidney Trouble or Something
I wish to get a good prescription for bladder or kidney trouble with which I have been afflicted for some time. It will give you the symptoms and you can just inclose the prescription and I will feel glad to get it. I will pay a reasonable sum for your trouble.

Answer.—Please read the instructions carefully. Dr. Brady cannot give a diagnosis or diagnosis or treatment of individual cases. It isn't a question of compensation, for the power of the doctor lacks the power of second sight, and in a case like yours he is unable to know without examination whether it is kidney trouble or bladder trouble or something else.

"I see a woman lying in a bed in a strange room. Her face is whiter than any face I have known; a man sits beside her, with his head in his hand, and, though death has no meaning for me, I am afraid, for I know that she was my mother."

"Was this in Cuba, Eleanor?" "I don't know, but I think so, Uncle Mark, because I remember running to the window and seeing a great palm tree outside, with spreading branches. And there are other cities, and we seem to go from place to place, always watching for somebody, and yet, as it were, hiding from people. I know we avoid people, but it is an instinct only that tells me so."

"And again I am with my father in the jungle. I don't know how we got there, but I see the trees all around me, and I am afraid. We walk on and on, and sometimes he carries me, and we sleep under the trees and are drenched with rain. I am so tired and thirsty. But we go on and on, and when we stop we find a little hut, and I am afraid no longer."

"And then?" asked Mark in agitation. "I remember nothing. I suppose the bullet that killed my father must have struck him while he was in the hut, but I have no picture in my mind at all."

Mark mumbled something to conceal his agitation. "And do you remember me coming and picking you up?" he asked. "She shook her head regretfully. 'I don't remember anything else,' she answered. 'Nothing until that dinner in the major's house.'"

"Yes," answered Mark, miserably. "He had always wondered what the child would be like. Howard's half-yearly letters had always assumed too much for granted. Mark had practically relinquished Eleanor to the Major, and he had never learned anything about her that he had really wanted to know. He had not imagined the precocious, high-strung, idealistic girl whom he now saw. He knew that the disclosure of her father's disloyalty, if ever it came about, would shock her into a revulsion of feeling that would be fatal to the true development of her character."

He had often wished that he had not pressed that idea of the regimental mascot upon the major. It had been born in a mind attuned to the victory of that bloody day; in normal moments he would never have entertained it. Yet Major Howard had been more impressed than he had admitted to Mark. The idea had spread through the minds of the other officers. "There was never a Guard dinner but Eleanor was solemnly toasted, though she was not permitted to be present, and somehow the child had become a symbol in the minds of these plain men in business and professional life who spent two weeks in camp each year."

After the war Mark had gone to the regulars; but he was still in touch with the officers of the Seventieth, and he knew that, if ever war came, he could obtain an appointment to it.

"I am sure that my father will prove to have been a brave soldier," said Eleanor, clasping her hands eagerly. "And sometimes," she continued, "I think that there must have been a great mystery about him."

"Why?" demanded Mark, startled. "Because of the man who watches for me."

"Watches for you? It is imagination, Eleanor."

She shook her head. "I've seen him three or four times," answered the girl. "He waits at places that we pass when we go out together. And he watches me then, though he never attempts to speak to me."

"And you've told Miss Harper?" "No, Uncle Mark. She would think I was hysterical," answered the girl, shrewdly.

ing, though he had a strange sinking at his heart. This child epitomized home to him, and he had been homeless since boyhood.

"You must forgive me," she said, a little wistfully. "Captain Mark, there's something I want awfully to say to you, but it takes a lot of courage," she added.

"Tell me just the same," answered Mark. "You know, my dear, I want you to have everything you wish for. And if Major Howard won't give it to you, you just let me know. He has assumed the responsibility for your upbringing, and I'm going to have the fun of giving you pleasure."

"It's something that Major Howard can't give me, Captain Mark."

"Can I?" "Yes," she said in a low voice, pulling at his coat, and suddenly raising her eyes to his. Mark Wallace saw the soul of a mature woman look out of the eyes of the child. "When I'm older and have put my hair up, and wear long dresses—when I'm eighteen, say, I—I want you to marry me, Captain Mark."

She was gone in a flash, running along the corridor, while Mark Wallace stood dumfounded at the door, hearing her footsteps grow fainter as she hurried into the recesses of the Misses Harpers' School for Select Young Ladies.

Mark went down the walk like a man dreaming. It was absurd; it was, perhaps, characteristic of the girl's age and temperament; and yet, in spite of the absurdity, Captain Mark Wallace felt as if he had suddenly regained the giddy little child whom he had found upon the hillside in front of Santiago, and lost again.

As he reached the gate he saw a man watching him from the bend of the road. Something of furtiveness in the man's posture made him wheel sharply round; then he remembered Eleanor's words and started in haste toward him. But the man shambled off at a quick gait and when Mark reached the bend he could see nobody.

CHAPTER IV.

And the years passed, and Mark Wallace grew grayer and older, and more set and dispirited, with long alternating intervals of resignation, when he took life as he found it and was satisfied. But he always came out of these into brief periods of unrest, with the sense that he had awakened from some lethargy that was damping his soul as the alkali and the winds of the plains had seamed his face and taken the last particle of his youth away.

Now in Texas, now in Arizona, now in some lonely border post in the freezing Northwest, he remained a captain. He had no friends in Washington. In time—in long time he would reach his majority, no doubt, to be relieved soon after, and vantage, with stout old majors of his own age, into ornate clubs in army centers not quite so far removed from civilization. He looked upon this prospect with ironical patience, and now and then asked himself the unanswerable question why he had remained in the army.

Eleanor was grown up and demitted permanently in Colonel Howard's town house, and her letters had grown more infrequent and perfunctory, until their arrival became a quarterly affair instead of a monthly event, and not always that, either.

And by and by the feeling came over Mark that if ever he were to see her again there would remain no common link between them. From doubting his future he had come to doubt himself. He doubted whether the desert life had not blunted him, blunted his finer instincts, and made him unfit for social life—certainly rendered him unfit for the guardianship of a young girl.

But that he had relinquished to Colonel Howard—grudgingly but uncompromisingly. Never in any of his letters did he put forward the shadow of his former claim.

Then, swiftly, and unexpectedly, chance turned and beckoned him. It came in the form of a letter from Colonel Howard, the first in two years. Howard had, in the past, repeatedly tried to induce Mark to take advantage of opportunities that he had put before him, but Mark had refused stubbornly, until the Major had given him up in disgust. Howard did not know, and Mark did not himself understand, the underlying idea in his own mind, the sense of subdued rancor against the man who had robbed him of Eleanor, coupled with the sense of sacrifice, that he might withdraw all his claims on the child.

Now, however, Howard made one more attempt.

Dinner Stories

A clubman had been reading a great deal concerning farming, food conservation, etc., and it occurred to him that it might be a good idea for him to have a try at the game. Turning to an old friend in whose wisdom he had absolute faith, he asked:

"Say, old man, what does a chap have to do, anyway, to be a gentleman farmer?"

"It's very simple," said the other. "One simply stays in town all winter and makes money."

Old Ivan Haddleton had amassed a fortune, but he was of very peculiar habits. His only surviving heir was a nephew who he had always given to understand would inherit his wealth.

When the announcement of the nephew's approaching marriage was made, the old gentleman was asked by a friend:

"Well, Ivan, now that Edgar has decided to marry, I suppose you will do something to make him happy on the occasion?"

"I will," answered Haddleton; "I'll pretend that I'm seriously ill."

Said the husband (the father of six daughters): "This is a gentleman in the drawing room who wants to marry one of our daughters. He is a wine merchant."

Said the wife: "A wine merchant? Thank goodness! Then he will be sure to select one of the older brands."

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be practically fit. Watch the kidneys.

The kidneys are the most overworked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes, look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels, causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often to turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

The Enemy Is Watching

By NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War

The supreme moments of our struggle with Germany have now come.

We have carried our first armies across three thousand miles of ocean and joined the issue of battle with the military power of a nation that has been for forty years preparing its plans and its weapons for its present attempt to dominate the world. We have had to put forth an immense effort and spend a fabulous sum in order to make, in so short a time, an adequate beginning for our gigantic task.

But it is only our beginning. We must follow it with greater energy and support it with increasing power. Men, munitions, ships and supplies must go to Europe in a larger and larger stream. We must redouble our blows and add constantly to the strength of those blows, if our initial effort is not to be wasted.

This Means That Our Fourth Liberty Loan Must Be Larger Than Its Predecessors, More Enthusiastically Supported and More Quickly Than Ever Subscribed

The enemy is watching anxiously for the first sign that we are faltering.

Our Government Loans should go "over the top" as eagerly as our soldiers do, in order to carry with them the terror of furious attack. Our dollars must rain upon the enemy as overwhelmingly as our hail of bullets or our storm of shells.

We are fighting for the liberty of the world, for the triumph of our ideals of democracy and self-government over the last great advocate of force upholding injustice. We are buying with our Liberty Loans the security and joy of our people for generations to come. No price could be too high to pay for such a victory—no cost too great for such a purchase.

Lend the Way Our Boys Fight—To Your Very Utmost!

SUBSCRIBE NOW

Go to Liberty Loan Headquarters, No. 5 N. Main street, and subscribe for a lot of these bonds. Buy all you can afford and then some; otherwise the committee may have to work out Janesville's share on the allotment plan. Don't hesitate a moment—this loan must go over and go over big. Buy, buy, buy. All subscriptions must be accompanied by 10% of the amount subscribed. Have your check or cash ready to the amount of 10% when you go to Liberty Loan Headquarters.
